

"Climate change is a threat to health, security and social stability. They are paying for a crisis they have nothing to do with. They need help and we should not see that help as charity."

- Kofi Annan

OPEN DISCUSSION

CLIMATE FINANCE FOR DEVELOPING COUNTRIES:
CHARITY OR COMPENSATION?

5 January 2017, 3-5pm

Kargadoor, Oudegracht 36, Utrecht

Calls for compensation for loss and damage caused by climate change have lost momentum as a result of international negotiations in Warsaw and Paris, but does this mean their potential is exhausted? Join an open discussion on where climate justice is to be found in the Paris Agreement, what are the current levels of investments in adaptation compared to what has been promised, how much fraud and corruption exists in the international climate finance system, and how the UNFCCC should address a general request for climate justice.

Speakers include: Paul Hassing, former climate change negotiator, Netherlands Development Cooperation; and Ian Tellam, Director of Adaptify and coordinator of the AdaptationWatch partnership.
